I agree I have to run 1 year Russian Language Preparatory Program to continue education at Russian universities.

I choose the following option of Russian Language Preparatory Program (choose only 1):

Russian language as foreign ;

Russian language + professional module (preparation for entrance exams of higher education).

Acquaintance with studying rules in Russia

Entering a Russian language course:

- scan of passport;
- scan of a document about your previous education;
- payment certificate (30% from the whole price).

Entering Russian universities:

- certified translation of the passport in the Russian Language (at the Embassy of the Russian Federation in your country);
- legalized documents of your previous education (documents should be legalized in the Embassy of the Russian Federation/Ministry of International Affairs in your country – the procedure is called “Embassy legalization”/ “Apostile”);
- certified translation of legalized/apostiled documents of school education in the Russian Language (at the Embassy of the Russian Federation in your country);
- signed agreement;
- payment certificate;
- medical certificate, confirming a student hasn't death diseases and infections;
- certified translation of the medical certificate, confirming a student hasn't death diseases and infections (in the Embassy of the Russian Federation in your country).
- successfully passed exams in the Russian language and other subjects (selection of subjects depends on what you are going to study on a degree program. Find out what subjects you need to pass in advance, better one year before in order to pass them successfully).

Studying rules:

- attendance of classes is obligatory in Russia (exception in case of sickness, but you need to inform your teacher/international office about it in advance);
- if you are late more than for 15 minutes your teacher has a right not to allow you to come in;

- in order to be allowed to pass an exam in the Russian language and other subjects you need to get a minimum of points, which you get due to your attendance of classes, doing your homework and a good work during classes;
- in Russia students study from Monday to Saturday, be ready to have classes on Saturdays;
- studying either at Russian universities or at the Russian language course is held on in the Russian language only;
- in Russia an academic year starts only once in a year and it's in SEPTEMBER (for degree programs).

Accommodation rules:

Students must:

- return to a dormitory before 11 p.m. (The dormitory closes from 11 p.m. to 6 a.m.). If you go to a party/night club, we recommend you to stay at your friend's house, a club or at a hotel. Don't walk on streets late at night;
- take part in duties (1-2 times in a month each room is responsible for cleaning in the kitchen) + attend a big cleaning up for all (Russian and foreign) students;
- wash the dishes and clean the kitchen after cooking;
- respect the dormitory administration and follow their requests;
- keep order in rooms.

Students mustn't:

- drink/smoke/spend night in another room/make noise after 9 p.m./bring guests (without informing and getting allowance of the dormitory administration).

Punishment for violation is: the first – warning, the second – departure from a dormitory.

Dormitory must:

- respect students;
- provide bed sheets and necessary help;
- check rooms whether they are clean once a week.

I'm informed about all rules connected with my staying and studying in Russia.
